The Crack File Is Ready To Install On Your PC.Q: Check whether a number is of the form $k/2^n$ I have an easy question, but I am stuck here: I have a user input number N , let $N = 2^n + k$, where $k = 1, 2, 3, 4, \dots, 2^n - 1$. And I want to check whether N is of the form $k/2^n$. I wrote the code like this: `scanf("%d", &N); if (N/2 == 2) { printf("even "); } else { printf("odd "); }` But there are some numbers, which I can't check by $N/2$. For example, if $N = 37$ or 38 , it is a wrong answer. How can I check N ? Thank you in advance! A: If $N = k + 2^n$, $2^n N = 2^n k + 2^{2n}$. The latter cannot be equal to $k + 2^{2n}$. That's because $k + 2^{2n}$ is a sum of a positive number and a nonnegative number, which cannot be equal to a positive number. A: You'll never be able to. If N is $2^n n + k$, $2N$ is $2^n(n+1) + k$. You can only get $k/2^n$ if N is not of the form $2^n n + k$. A: Let's suppose you get a number like this: 17 You can check this by first checking the number of digits. Now, you don't need to divide it by 2. You only have to check if there are exactly two digits after the comma. Using standard C library functions, we can do this like this: `#include #include #include int main(void) { 1cb139a0ed`
