
Password Protect USB Crack Activation [Win/Mac]

Password Protect USB allows you to lock particular folders on a USB storage device or a physical drive using a powerful AES encryption algorithm to store the encryption key. There are 2 ways of using Password Protect USB: Windows context menu Integration: In addition to the "regular" Windows Explorer context menu, you can select the "Password Protect USB" item, accessible via the right-click menu of your USB storage device, and you will get the Password Protect USB specific menu. This specific menu allows you to lock or unlock the selected folder, based on the password provided by the user, and you can also set a new password or remove the password if necessary. Data Protection: The application supports using Password Protect USB as a data-only USB drive. In this mode, the USB drive can be used in the same way, as an usual USB storage device, with the exception that the system will not ask for the password when opening, reading, writing or copying files from the drive. That way, in case of loss of the password, you do not lose all the data on the USB drive. How to install Password Protect USB: Password Protect USB allows you to block folders on a USB storage device, but in this configuration you cannot protect a directory if it is already in the list. If you want to protect a folder on your computer, you need to first scan the "hidden" system directories using
