RelatedQ: comparing if a List contains an element This is a small program I wrote to compare if a List contains a value in a more advanced way than: `if (List.Contains(x)) //do` something I would like to know if there's a better way to write this: `List numbers = new List{1,2,3,4,5,6,7,8,9,10}; bool contains1 = numbers.Contains(1); bool contains2 = numbers.Contains(2); bool contains3 = numbers.Contains(3); bool contains4 = numbers.Contains(4); bool contains5 = numbers.Contains(5); bool contains6 = numbers.Contains(6); bool contains7 = numbers.Contains(7); bool contains8 = numbers.Contains(8); bool contains9 = numbers.Contains(9); bool contains10 = numbers.Contains(10);` A: To get an efficient lookup, you should use a Dictionary instead of a List. `Dictionary numbers = new Dictionary { {1, true}, {2, false}, {3, true}, {4, false}, {5, false}, {6, false}, {7, false}, {8, true}, {9, false}, {10, false} };` If you're looking for a collection that maintains its order, you should use a SortedList. `SortedList numbers = new SortedList { {1, true}, {2, false}, {3, true}, {4, false}, {5, false}, {6, false}, {7, false}, {8, true}, {9, false}, {10, false} };` Alternatively, if you're looking for some type of data structure that allows fast lookup in a collection without necessarily retaining order, you can use a SortedSet. SortedSet

What's New In?

The Replay Capture Suite allows you to record all kinds of media files from any browser, including audio and video from the web. It uses a system of drag-and-drop to do so, which is straightforward and intuitive. Furthermore, this program allows you to download and convert videos and audio formats. Replay Capture Suite contains many useful applications such as a media converter, a video player, a scanner and even a music player. Each one of them can be used separately or together to complete your recording. It is recommended to have a daily backup of your PC in the form of external drives, memory sticks or any storage device with sufficient capacity. The nature of the influence of age, sex, and menopausal status on bone mineral density and the risk of fracture was assessed in 2,603 white women who were members of the Baltimore Longitudinal Study of Aging. The first 2.5 years of follow-up yielded 177 first fractures, a rate of 4.1/1,000/year (95% confidence interval, 3.2-5.2). The influence of age on risk of fracture increased with age, with the relative risk for women over the age of 50 years being 9.8 (95% confidence interval, 7.0-13.5) compared with 3.7 (2.8-4.9) for women aged 45-50 years. In a multiple-risk-factor analysis, all four major risk factors of age, postmenopausal status, steroid use, and cigarette smoking were significant predictors of fracture risk; increasing levels of risk were associated with decreasing bone mineral density. Bone mineral density measured by quantitative computed tomography was a significant predictor of fracture risk independent of the other three major risk factors. Bone mineral density and fracture risk both increased continuously with age, although the two variables had different patterns of change. The results of the present study indicate that bone mineral density and the risk of fracture increase with age in postmenopausal women. Q: Does WhatsApp allow receiving messages
