Anodyne is a puzzle/visual-novel game where you control the flow of time. Story: Fade in the deep darkness. Darkness and quiet. Clank. A large round metal object rolls toward you on its axis. The round object begins to lose its shape and spin faster, and faster. Clank! Clank! Clank! Then a spark, like an exploding bomb. A bright light fills the center of the room, and then a boiling cauldron of liquid appears. The object slides right through the light and breaks into tiny pieces as it merges with the boiling liquid. It hits the ground with a loud boom and a plume of water splashes upward. A small door opens in the side of the room and a large round object, much like the one that was just there, rolls out. Clank, clank, clank. The door shuts and fades back into darkness. Does that all sound like only a video game? If so, Anodyne is about time travel and rewriting the past. You are a machine, sent to alter the course of history, to unravel an unsolved puzzle, and to change the course of events to be the best outcome for all concerned. Make the best choices you can, and the future will be very different. Anodyne will give you a challenge - but it's also a game of choice and control. The player choices and actions you make can change the course of the game. None of the choices are right or wrong, and there is no "right" answer. That being said, the choices will shape the history. Features: Hours of gameplay. Up to you how long you spend. (This guide is meant to provide some ideas of game length.) Tons of story. Enjoy the story, or skip it. You can even change history to suit your needs. An unimaginable number of choices. (This guide is meant to provide a general idea of the number of choices you'll have.) Rewrites, shapeshifters, and spoofs. Most of the game is based on what happens if you were to rewrite history. No enemy. None whatsoever. Everything is up to you, including the nature of the gameplay. Classic point-and-click gameplay with slightly unusual plot mechanics. Puzzles that lead to more puzzles,

Taking my time to enjoy the view, I've nothing to fear. It's a beautiful day, and I think I should enjoy it while I can. If I want to recover anything from this, I'll have to work hard. It's my choice to have remained here, but that's all the choice that I have. There's nothing I can do about it. The sky has started to turn dark. A fog is forming around the sun, so I can no longer see it. This must be a bad sign. I know it's probably my imagination, but I can feel the hair on the back of my neck stand on end. There's a bad feeling in the air. Any second now, this could turn into a full-scale disaster. I look around, but all the excitement seems to be emanating from me. The fog is thick, almost as if it were holding me in its grasp. Surely, it's not the end? I mean, I've survived so far. I can't believe it. It's really happening! Everything starts to go black. I almost think I'm falling… I guess I was right. It was all a dream. I'm not going to wake up. I'm finally going to sleep. Evan - Jon - Disclaimer d41b202975

For pixel creatures like us, mere atoms aren't enough to wield the power of creation. The souls of human beings are powerful, so the stronger we become, the more the soul resides within us. In the chaos of destruction wrought by the relentless pounding of the metronome, did you say with the blood that flows through you was nothing?You may have said that, but the truth is I have seen you. The more I see, the more pure the light in your eyes…I will not die alone. Light that remains unwavering in a sea of chaos…You are the sun. In this world all things are the same, they are just different in appearance. The wish of every living being is the same, no matter the age. Death is approaching. The Ancient and powerful ones have all scattered far and wide. The young ones who stand in this world are just like us. They must all die. Don't be deceived by the false gods who speak falsehood… Dynamite — enter the world of godless flesh Dynamite — the power of dynamite Owls — born out of blood, living out of blood Owl — silence that comes from blood Owl — voice of the dead, a dead voice Owl — the face of the dead Owl — a light made out of blood Owl — so long as blood flows, the owl remains. Owl — neither cold nor hot, it is the eternal home of the spirit An Owl — so long as blood flows, the owl remains. An Owl — so long as blood flows, the owl remains. A monster — a monster made by man. Cockroach — a monster that lives in filth. Cockroach — a cannibal at a time when food is scarce. Cockroach — a beast living on dry food. Darkness — an enemy of the human body. Darkness — an enemy of the soul. Clock — a dark figure that reveals the futility of life. Clock — a heart made of dreams. Clock — an instrument of death. Clock — a watch that we carry around in our pockets. Life — in the world of beasts it is the only power Life — in the world of beasts

Anodyne OST is a music album that is part of El-P's first official major label release Munder's Munder. A significant component of the album, the long piano and string and ethereal vocal sample track "Jitel" features co-producer Aaron Burtch on piano, which he premiered at a performance at New York City's Rainbow Space to a crowd that included Josh Homme, Lars Frederiksen of Throbbing Gristle and Members of Swans and Dinosaur Jr. The opening track "Pulp Fiction" was nominated for Single of the Year from Pitchfork Media in their first-ever Year End list. Pitchfork reviewer Mark Richardson described the album as an exquisite first big leap, a "taste of the different kind of music [El-P] is capable of." In a retrospective review for AllMusic, William Ruhlmann gave it a rating of 4 out of 5 stars, saying that the song "pardonably provides one of the more significant moments in the career of El-P," and calling the album's arrangements "impressive."
