Bismack Biyombo is having a hell of a rookie year. Just like with Gay, Ibaka is the perfect power forward for them. Kawhi can score from anywhere on the court and he's going to be that superstar for the next five years that gets his team to the next level. The Raptors can easily be a dynasty in the East for at least another five years. They have the starting five to keep them in contention, and the trade deadline will be the best time to keep adding talent and depth for next season. Dalton: The Indiana Pacers The Pacers have been a ticking time bomb since the Rudy T. days, and this year has felt like the time when they've finally come to the point of no return. Victor Oladipo and Bojan Bogdanovic have been great additions to this team, but it's their frontcourt that has been their real problem. Myles Turner is a great NBA big man, but they can't get much offensive production from him. Thad Young is very good, but not better than the likes of Solomon Hill or even Doug McDermott. Myles isn't the defensive anchor that he's supposed to be. Andrew Harrison is a much better bench player than starter, and Cory Joseph is serviceable. With all that, they've gotten way too little from Bojan Bogdanovic. One of the best frontcourt finishers in the NBA, there's no reason for them to be looking at a small forward. Neither Domantas Sabonis nor Myles Turner would be effective as that role. That leaves Thad Young as the natural choice. He's a poor man's Luc Mbah a Moute, not much more than that. It's not that the Pacers are in trouble right now, but they're going to need to make some major moves to upgrade their roster. Another player who is good for spot-ups, Young is not a starter in this league. It's very possible
