A complex fantasy setting

The Lands Between is a land full of calamity and enduring horror. When it began, the lands were integrated to the land of Gnathide and from there were forged into existence. Their inhabitants left with the passage of time, and as the lands have forgotten what lies beyond the Dungeon, they have gradually forgotten the spell-woven structure. This power-filled magma has flowed, even as it has shattered the lands, to rise in places. And new magic beasts may emerge from the chaos of the event-filled molten magma that had been forged within. It is so full of the dark and foreboding that it is called the Dungeon. It is where the Elden Ring drags those who are not worthy.

A Stone World Level

Depicted here is the Stone World as seen from a higher viewpoint. Even the flowers are lush and flourishing. Through the opening, you can see the moonlight shining on the Burned World, an unrivaled area once adorned with the lives of mortals, whose self-sacrifice opened a portal to the Dungeon. The world of magic, the Wall of Valtura was constructed

Q: Let me see the results, let me see the upvotes, let me see everything! I believe that analytics is a very useful thing. But there is a lot of data there, and it is pretty hard to figure out which results are real or the result of user bias. So here I am, a user with more than 1,700 questions and over 800 answers, and I want to see all of it! I'm going to get the data from my account and put it on SEDE. If I did it, some time will pass before I put the data there, and you might be seeing very old data already. But let me show you how it is done. The data I know that I am an avid user, and I've got a lot of questions with a lot of answers. This doesn't mean you should see all of them. I have seen some old data, so I'm going to restrict the number of questions I show (but I'm going to show all my answers). This means that I will be showing you 12 questions, and about 25 answers. Next thing is to see the data. Let's start with questions (because we have to answer 10 in order to see all the data). Here are the 12 questions I'm going to show you: Does "when" matter in database transaction isolation levels? What are the memory-usage implications of using the NOLOCK hint? When to use a 'WHERE NOT EXISTS' SQL query In SQL Server, is there any significant performance difference between a normal JOIN and a LEFT JOIN with an ON clause containing a WHERE? Is "native" cursors/stored procedures bad practice in MySQL? If you have a task that will run for hours, is it wise to create a stored procedure that loops? When should you batch queries in T-SQL? What does SQL Server use to serialize a query? Does the 'INSERT' statement in SQL Server guarantee unique values? How to update a table column in SQL Server? SQL Server 2012 question mark or?? Does the order of columns in a CREATE TABLE affect performance? Here are the 25 answers I'm going to show you: What happens when you chain multiple UPDATES in a stored procedure? How to synchronize data on a multi-user environment? What is the best database for a massive workflow? What is the
