“HyperMotion Technology” is only available in Ultimate Team and gives players who own it an edge over other players who do not, as it results in the most accurate and authentic gameplay experience of any FIFA game to date. The final thing to keep in mind is that all Custom Matches are still completely editable by EA and the community. This means that it’s really important for the community to identify every little detail of the game, because chances are your favorite thing is missing from the game (take for example, the brand new “Check Every Corner” option that was added to the game after Beta 2). In this guide, you will get to know the full game mode “Coin Battles,” how to activate it in the game, and how to access it by yourself. Coin Battles “Coin Battles” are a new single player mode that lets you create your own battles. You can play through these battles with up to 4 friends, one at a time. Each player can own one or more of their favorite teams, from the big orals (Roma, Juve, Man U, Barca, etc) to small leagues like Finland, Greece or China. Coin Battles consist of two parts: the battle selection screen and the battle gameplay. The selection screen is the area where you decide what team you want to use. Once you have chosen it, you will be taken to the gameplay. The gameplay consists of two parts, the actual battle and the post-battle. The actual battle has different battlespaces, you have to move through the spaces, and you have a certain amount of time to control a territory. Post-Battle After the battle, you will be taken to the post-battle screen. The post-battle screen consists of four sections: Gamescore, Wins, Losses and Team ranks (Roma, Man U and Barca are already ranked, while teams like Greece and the Nordic countries are unranked). These are described in the image above. Gamescore is the score of the actual battle. Wins are the amount of victories achieved by your team. Losses is the amount of defeats you have suffered. Team ranks are the level of your team. Team ranks are from 1 to 20. Gamescore determines the end of the battle. If you win your battle against another team with a higher game score than yours, your game
