DeeRage: One of the most critically acclaimed games of 2012! Play as a slinky cat with a penchant for pizza and destruction! Gameplay DeeRage is an innovative top-down platformer where you play as the eponymous Dee, a pizza-obsessed cat with a deadly love for dangerous explosives. Dee, who stands just under a metre in height, must scale some of the toughest structures ever designed, from the titanic skyscrapers of the Evil City to the clockwork madness of the Insane Asylum. The world of DeeRage is vast and teeming with menacing creatures, including giant wasp-like flying dragons, razor-armed undead squid-men, and of course, the dreaded SHROPSHIRT! Each level has multiple paths to choose from, with Dee encountering a variety of unique items and obstacles along the way, from giant flying propellers and deadly gladiators to giant lasers and mutant manta rays. From roof-jumping to leaping, leaping to bouncing, bouncing to rolling, rolling to running... run all you want. At any point, Dee can pick up, drop, throw, manipulate, and electrocute-- we have a lot of fun with Fireball! As Dee, you can use any of the many objects you encounter to achieve your goals. Locking on to a roof with a grappling hook, throwing a fireball to burn it down, or even locking onto a wall and then vaulting off of it to perform a perfect triple-flip, DeeRage is the ultimate run-and-gun platformer! Features: * Gameplay through the eyes of a cat * Run and jump your way through a massive open-ended environment * Find new hidden objects and explore every nook and cranny * Over 20 hours of gameplay! * Highly detailed, hand-drawn art style * Gorgeous soundtrack by Kotaku's own crayon swirls * Hardcore Mode featuring "Aura" mode for those of you with a lot of free time (Note: Aura mode available only in Hardcore Mode) In the distant future, the free-flowing currents of fate have brought two people together - Hiro and Ando. This is a visual novel in 4 subplots: Cassius, Maia, Ava, and Cassius (3rd subplot) There is also an extra subplot that gives you a bit of information about Cassius' past, and how he got to where he is now. The plot has multiple paths. You can play through the entire game with either one of the 3 girls, or you can choose to play one story with one of the girls, and then use the other two as subplots, which you can switch between at any time. There is also a mini-story at the very beginning. If you choose to do this, you will not be able to play through the entire game as a female. There are over 25 CGs The main protagonist is a non-binary system and you can customize it's appearance as well as its gender: Male Female Two-gender neutral (I don't remember the exact name of this option) Then there's the plot itself, which I'd say has plenty of character development, and hopefully some good laughs. So, if you like visual novels, or if you like reading romance stories with a twist, try playing this! I'm sorry, but I only download visual novels that are being released outside Japan. I'm not checking updates at Steam or some other platform, because I don't have that type of freedom. I'm also not watching game trailers or reviews, because I don't have the time nor the patience to invest that time into those things. (Note: This is rated M, but I do not condone, promote, or suggest rape, sexual assault, or any form of violence or abuse. For that reason, I do not plan to talk about any such scenes in this fic. Some sexual stuff will be mentioned, and I'll warn you when that's going on. I'm writing this because I really liked playing Maia, so I don't want her to be lonely, so my first priority is to have her experience life with Cas as it was always meant to be experienced.)Stories Available:Currently, there are only two available:Maia and Cassius' reunion story. Until recently, there were some fics I wrote in which Maia was paired with Cas, but those were done years ago. Each of those fics stand alone as long as you don't read any other Maia and Cas fics. While Maia's already taken, I'm still considering what she'd want to do with her time at Cas's place. If I come up with a story that I really like, I might make more. But I may not write it. Still, you never know. Characters MaiaCassiusKevin (optional) (The writer of this fic) (these two cannot be the only players; at least one of them needs to be a follower of the player who wants to play Maia)East Polk High School East Polk High School is a high school in Clermont County, Florida. The school is located in a rural area of the county, off Florida State Road 746, at 2823 N. Lomak Road. The campus is named for a nearby community of East Polk. History East Polk was constructed in the 1950s in anticipation of the explosive growth of the Florida school system. It was designed to be a centralized, specialized high school. As the state of Florida expanded from 1,000 high schools to 6,500 high schools, it was a challenge to serve every student, and many schools, including East Polk, were constructed as centers of excellence for the surrounding areas. Originally designed to seat 1,500 students, East Polk had over 3,000 students at its opening in 1955. The original campus consisted of a cluster of red brick buildings. A new East Polk, a few blocks away, was constructed to relieve overcrowding. East Polk High School was severely damaged by Hurricane Charley in August 2004. Athletics

- One Year After the Great Flood As I shared with you in a previous post, my heart grows fonder each day. On February 26th, 2010, I almost lost all of it. At 3pm, the middle of the day, I was sitting on my front porch when my dog looked back at me with those awful, brown eyes and I knew it was raining outside. Sure enough, the rain gently poured for about thirty minutes and then it got harder and harder. As the rain stopped I opened the sliding door and was stunned. No sign of vegetation, plants or trees in my backyard, the maple tree in my front yard leaning over like it wanted a hug, the flag flying on the pole (sorry, it was in the other direction), trees in the front and back yards hanging over and the roofs of our homes with all the gutters and downspouts empty. It was a sight to behold. To make matters even worse, our house was fully engulfed. Water was pouring in under the front door. I called 911 and they put me on hold (still fairly normal, granted). At that very moment, our power went out. I called my power company to report the problems, and again they put me on hold. At 3:30 I called them and they apologized for the many many different issues with the power that day (I thought our power was going to go out, okay??). We were told at that time to not leave the house, other than to grab the few things we need. We were to call 911 if anything else happened, they said. It was unclear to me what this meant. I had never owned a cell phone and weren't sure when they were first invented. Maybe after the post office started taking my mail, I missed that part? Still in the house that day. In my brief call with the power company I was told they would send someone out to look at our problem. They were to come out at 6pm. They didn't show. I tried to call the power company again and I was told they were experiencing a blackout all over the city. I was then put on hold. At 6pm I called 911 and I was put on hold once again. I was told to sit tight and wait for someone to come out. No one ever did. We used flashlights, candles, kerosene lamps and gas-based lights to try to
