KODAK ColorMunki Kodak is the current ruler of the home-image-rendition world, having been in this industry for a long time. They have many different cameras to choose from, with the most popular being the KODAK C15Z digital SLR camera and the KODAK C45Z digital SLR camera. Both of these cameras are equipped with a camera with a viewfinder and a control panel full of buttons, but it is the KODAK C15Z camera that uses the brand-new Control Panel Express. The Control Panel Express, shown in Figure 3-3, has a lot of buttons on it. This type of control panel enables the user to control settings for the camera, image, film, and more. It is an electronic control panel that allows the user to assign functions to buttons on the front of the camera. This is a very user-friendly way to use the camera. The camera not only has many options but also has a good, detailed manual that explains each option in detail. Figure 3-3: This Control Panel Express from KODAK with the KODAK C15Z digital camera is a very user-friendly way to control many camera functions.

By Kate Kelland Last updated at 21:22 07 February 2008 We all know the image of the mum who has her hair blow-dried while her kid is playing with Barbie dolls. She's surrounded by Nikes and MP3 players and yet she still keeps her composure - whereas we? We're wittering on about our Birkenes. It's exhausting, isn't it? Try and focus. You're not yet talking about your kids' names, but your kroners. They can wait. Scroll down for more... Last week, on the website of Times Online, the extraordinarily witty Mrs Green gave a guide for raising a British child. They will not wear Birkenstocks, will not want to eat baguettes and they will not want to see a Spiderman film. Mrs Green - a 36-year-old advertising executive - says her three sons all had sticks and bricks - and even pocket knives, for goodness sake. "It was a lot easier. There were no rules about what you could and couldn't do, no questions about contraception, no questions about sex, and of course, you had to be prepared to negotiate with your husband over the housework." On the other hand, she says, things will be so much easier when you have a child. So the first rule is to leave the "porn, Baby-Gap and guns" at home. The second rule is to plan to buy a washing machine three years before your baby comes, so that you don't have to start from scratch. Thirdly, when it comes to food shopping, do not buy food the day before you eat it. Mrs Green's fourth rule is simple. "You have to make time for yourself. You can't be the perfect parent all the time." It sounds simple, but in practice this is likely to prove a little difficult. First of all, you can't be the perfect parent all the time. At least not if you want to enjoy the rest of your life. But also, in practical terms, it's difficult for women to relax when there are children about and there's so much to do. So what's a woman to do if she's already trying to navigate this minefield when she gets pregnant with a baby? The answer is simple. She can't just relax and have a brew. Instead

Q: generate html code dynamically from xml In my project I'm using XmlTextWriter for writing huge xml files. There's a strange situation where I have to generate html code from xml code. Is it possible? I'm using C# for this purpose. I searched a lot but didn't find any solution so far. Can anyone help me? A: Try this code. It create html code from xml. // Declare a XmlTextWriter XmlTextWriter writer = new XmlTextWriter("", Encoding.UTF8); // Declare the root element writer.WriteStartDocument(); // Declare a prefix writer.WriteStartPrefixMapping("g", ""); // Create a new element for the last node writer.WriteStartElement("node"); // Add the document's first node into the current element writer.WriteElementString("class", "one"); // Add a textnode into the document's last element writer.WriteString("This"); // Add a textnode with a "g" into the document's last element writer.WriteString("g", "google.com"); // Add another textnode into the document's last element writer.WriteString("second"); // Append the xml as a string writer.WriteEndElement(); // Close the document writer.WriteEndDocument(); // Close the writer writer.Close(); It will create this html code.
