Webroot have been too quick to reply!.The city of Phoenix may one day be known as the "horse capital of the world," as it is called during the annual Arabian horse auction at the Arizona State Fairgrounds. About a dozen horses will be up for sale this year, including a horse named Miss Nancy, a Dutch warmblood stallion, and a 25-year-old gelding named Giant. Both of these horses can be seen in the photo above. The racing and pleasure horse auction starts at noon on Saturday, July 14, 2017 at the Arizona State Fairgrounds. The event is free and open to the public. More than just a horse auction The event includes a full-scale Arabian horse show, where exhibitors from around the country display their best rides. For more than 20 years, this has been the largest Arabian horse show in the world. When the month of July arrives, the fairgrounds' state-of-the-art, air-conditioned Grandstand will host the largest Arabian horse show in the world. "The Grandstand is the most beautiful venue for a large show and it's a great place to bring in horses who are in their prime," said Sarah Cook, executive director of the Arabian Horse Association of America. "Anyone who attends this show is there to see the best horses in the world, and exhibitors represent over 200 countries of the world. It's an international event." The fairground's Grandstand will see some of the world's best grandstand shows, including an American Quarter Horse Association World Championship, a multiple-stakes American Paint Horse National
