Grey Block: Escape the Green Valley Psychiatric Hospital is a detailed, first-person stealth-action game that puts players in control of Theo Church. Players must use wit and wile to escape the ever-present security apparatus, staying under the radar as they look for evidence of the conspiracy that got them committed to this hellhole in the first place. Players must also avoid the ire of the hospital's residents and staff, as their harassment costs not only Theo's freedom, but his life. Key Features Detailed, Action-Thriller Gameplay Players take on the role of Theo Church, a newly committed patient at Green Valley Psychiatric Hospital. There Theo will be forced to contend with the increasing pressure of his own confused mind in the face of a conspiracy he doesn't understand and his therapist who refuses to believe that he is anything more than a harmless child. The game requires players to avoid detection, outwit the hospital's security apparatus, avoid violence against the staff, and piece together evidence to prove his innocence. First-Person Point-and-Click Stealth Gameplay As Theo, players can get around the clinical and institutional surroundings by stealth using a 3rd-person perspective in a 3D environment. He can get from one point of interest to the next using the use the X-ray View, or he can simply sneak through the empty halls, sniping from his crosshairs to eliminate any obstacles in his path. Players can use stealth in their favor by planting notes to mess up any guards' path and cause them to look in an entirely new direction, or by setting boobytraps to cause a reaction, from sloshing water or swinging doors to lighting fires and activating sprinklers. If players hear something above ground, they'll have to take cover and evaluate the situation before moving forward. Unfortunately the guards are not prone to taking their cues from their patients. Nurses are not angels and there's no guarantee they will forgive trespassers for getting the hospital into trouble. Intuitive, Text-based Scripting Players don't have to manually navigate the file-system structure that drives the game. Rather they can just type the commands they want directly into the console. That's not to say it's not difficult at times though. If a player removes a file, then re-searches for the file later in the filesystem structure, it will appear to have been deleted. If players want to find something out of place, or

A United Kingdom company is blazing a path toward the country's first hydrogen-powered EV market. The firm is developing a Nisshinbo EV, an all-electric road car that is already in production. In a statement, the company says the Nisshinbo EV will be the first hydrogen-powered vehicle to go production in Japan, the United Kingdom, and Canada. And now it is entering into a joint venture with Japanese company Nippo Electric Corporation to produce hydrogen-powered cars in a partnership known as Nippo Hydrogen Vehicle JV. This agreement is purportedly for 10 years and entails the development and production of EVs, plug-in hybrids, and hydrogen vehicles in Japan, the United Kingdom, and Canada. The partnership aims to research and develop sustainable mobility solutions that deliver low emission, zero-emission, clean and reliable vehicles, with the first of the vehicles to be on the road when production commences in early 2022. Speaking on the announcement, the chief operating officer of the Ministry of Economy, Trade and Industry (METI), Hiroshi Hori, stated, "As hydrogen is regarded as a clean source of energy, hydrogen fuel cells are expected to expand market potential and create new business opportunities. Accordingly, we would like to work with partners to develop practical policies for hydrogen-powered cars, which will be important in the initial stage of our measures to tackle global warming." Mike Robinson, CEO of Nippo Electric, echoed this sentiment, stating, "We aim to fill a void in the domestic EV market. We are also partnering with Toyota, since Toyota is the leader in this area. I am looking forward to working with METI and Toyota to develop new hydrogen technologies and the hydrogen economy." As noted in the announcement, one of the main features of the Nippo Hydrogen Vehicle JV is that it has three different models to accommodate various preferences across the consumer market. The two conventional powertrain options are a conventional ICE coupled with fuel cell technology and a conventional ICE coupled with FCEV (fuel

What's new in Zombaliens:

"Anomaly Zone" is the second single from American rapper Nas' 2002 album The Marshall Mathers LP. The song features fellow rapper Kanye West. "Anomaly Zone" has since been used in one video game (Pit Fighter) and one movie (2008). The song was produced by Kanye West and Dr. Dre. The song is a takedown of fame, calling to throw out the "conceited" among the rappers. West and Nas sing the chorus in unison, and Dr. Dre brings a heavy bass line. Cee-Lo Green, another rapper featured on The Marshall Mathers LP, provides background vocals. The song has not been considered a huge success in the music industry. Although it was not a smash hit, the song charted on multiple Billboard charts for a significant period of time and remains a favorite of Nas' fans. In 2007, The New York Times called it "one of his best hip-hop songs". The song is an ode to Kanye West and helped cement his role as the leader of the Yee-haw movement. The song references many songs by West, such as "Can't Tell Me Nothing", "Slow Jamz", "Who Will Survive in America?", "Jesus Walks", and "U.S.A." All 4 of the aforementioned songs have become some of West's biggest hits. The song disses Ed Lover in its lyrics. Background "Anomaly Zone" was produced by Kanye West and Dr. Dre. In 2004, West explained his involvement with the song: "I was just thinking out loud. I'd just been at Nas and that song and everything when I went to Compton. That's when I first met Nas. We came up and did that and it was there that I kind of told Nas that song. I kind of told him on a longer track—it wasn't until I heard 'Anomaly Zone' that I did it—but we came up and we said that, 'I'm going to do a song with you.'" In 2015, Nas responded to being dismissive by saying, "This guy has not made a song with me yet." In 2018, West claimed he had been contacted by Nas to work on a new song, but he declined the offer because he was creating new music. Composition According to the sheet music published at Musicnotes.com by Hal Leonard Corporation, the song is written in the key of B major and set in common time,
