The term “fos” as used in this specification and the claims is meant to refer to the naturally-occurring protein, FosB. The naturally-occurring form of FosB is composed of 319 amino acids. The cDNA corresponding to the naturally-occurring form of FosB protein was cloned independently by several groups (Murphy, J. A., et al., Cell, 55:591-596 (1988); U. Sartorelli, et al., Proc. Natl. Acad. Sci. USA, 87:6384-6388 (1990); and Simeone, et al., Proc. Natl. Acad. Sci. USA, 89:7099-7103 (1992)). The amino acid sequence of the naturally-occurring form of FosB protein is presented in SEQ ID NO: 1. The only studies that have specifically determined a role for FosB have been concerned with its role in the modulation of various aspects of hormone-induced growth of mammary epithelium. What's new in No Rage Quit Dude:

!! 03-12-2012, 03:37 PM Alright, on to "Achievements" this time. If you all played KSPS lately, you would have seen me writing out the newest achievement. Although I hated it, it has me on cloud 9 because I was able to fail it twice. In fact, I failed it so many times that I think I almost started feeling bad about it. What made me so pissed off and motivated to keep on trying? I did none of these things, not that I accomplished those things. This achievement was designed to give you experience points to level up your character. As in life, skill overcomes level. Skill is a battle against time and start-up costs. In education, we learn that to learn, there must be some expense, some investment that requires us to be able to pay attention, take the time to read and think, and use things like graphic organizers, tests, etc., to gain the information. Repetition is a good thing. We practice it with drills and repetition until muscle memory, instead of willpower, dictates the sequence of movement. Education has been hard for some people. Desperation has motivated me to set out to kill this achievement for my ward by starting KSPS. Three hours later, I had the achievement. So, having been at this for four years, I would like to share my war stories with you. There is so much money in education nowadays, and education is really just a business for some. Unfortunately, the business models that have developed are only good for the big businesses and management (who often don't know much about teaching). In fact, with the amount of money being sent their way and with access to education being so greatly increased in the early nineties, a bully business model developed in education. It sucked. All of the money we are making today is from the hard teachers who have so much influence on the schools and on the lives of the average teachers. The benefits are disproportionate to the cost. There is a cut-throat problem with management, which is a much bigger problem than there is with students, because of the lack of accountability and lack of experienced leadership. On top of that, many of the teachers may not see themselves as responsible for the system and are often incapable of acting in the best interest of both the teachers and the students. Management and the state education system are too far removed from the teachers. Bill Gates got $1.3 billion from the state of Washington
