It is called the "Ball of Light." I think that most of you have met with this ball of light at one time or another. Most likely this has happened when you were in a very dark time in your life. However, if you want to see the ball of light again, it is important to have prayer support. It is like learning to see, but only with the help of a teacher. Otherwise, if you are to see this ball of light, it will come to you when you are most open and receptive. Last week I talked about your spiritual openings and how they can open or close depending on the person or situation. Today, I want to talk about the teachers that have come before you to prepare you for the ball of light. I would like to talk about the religious leaders of your life. These men and women may have been ministers, rabbis, priests, monks, nuns, and even magicians. Regardless of the title or the professed experience, these "spiritual leaders" have one thing in common; they were teachers. They were in a constant cycle of teaching and learning from other teachers. This is how you grow. All of your spiritual teachers have come from your tradition. They are called leaders because they are teaching from their tradition. In your tradition, you have multiple leaders as the light shines. Yet your spiritual teachers come from the light. As a result, you have spiritual teachers and mentors. Within your tradition you will also have "pseudo spiritual leaders" who are anything but spiritual. These may be monks, nuns, rabbis, or ministers who are engaged in the worldly business of a religious career. They may appear to be holy men and women, but in fact they are living under the veil of darkness. They often find themselves "seeking someone" because they are not meeting with the light. Despite their being a leader of their tradition, they are not a teacher. You must work to learn the difference between a true 0cc13bf012
