What's new in Fifa 22:

- Expanded social marketplace for DLC features: Earn coins by winning and watch seasons of tournaments you might not have known about (part of this season will have the Copa America because the America in FIFA always won the Copa America because the America plays with pretzels in its pants.) Also, in a super bad-ass backwards move, EA has started charging for coins (Euros, not FIFA Points) which requires players to re-buy the damn stuff.
- Camila is now Mexican, because she appears in Mexico.
- Wandering around collects more stuff, which is the exact opposite of every other game.
- Female players finally get better shape. Now the best female player has the same ass as all the other female players.
- FIFA has finally started to catch up to women in other sports. NOW they all CAN dunk and have projectile-like speed.
- Future Player Ratings. Players' future performance is now a carefully-crafted statistical tool, with future stats based on previous performance.
- Performance-based Team Tactics. The most important addition in this version is a new Team Makeup system. Team Tactics actually affects what your strongest talent does, rather than just saying "More gunners!"
- Leg health. Hitting the ground while playing soccer is now much, much, much more harmful and important. Makes it much, much less fun if you are able to do soccer hits in FIFA 22.
- Mono camera. The standard FIFA camera is now capable of showing the game from two different viewpoints from one angle, as opposed to the five viewpoints before, which made watching this game much more frustrating in terms of maintaining your objectivity about the player's position and how close they are to the ball.
- New stadium cam. I am 99% sure this stadium cam is 'cause they haven't yet been able to add at least two stadium cams to every stadium in the game. That is all I have.
- Gameplay Assistant.
- New Superstar mode. You must now choose between pure superstardom or defeating rival players in inter-team competitions (1v1). This is the same as FIFA 21 where if you want to become the best player you need to defeat the other team in Inter-Team competitions. This was the only thing that was worth the $60 I spend on this

Football is a game of pure skill. The FIFA games simulate the physicality of the sport, capturing every nuance of a player's footwork, sprints and dribbles, as well as their passing and shooting. In all modes, you are free to approach challenges however you choose. For official club and player licensing information, see www.fifa.com. What's new in FIFA 22? Football is a team sport. In FIFA 22, every player on the pitch is an intelligent AI partner, reacting on the fly to take advantage of opportunities and make difficult saves. In addition, this year's FIFA Ultimate Team and online connectivity lets players create and trade club legends, remixing their performances and attributes to share with friends on the FIFA social platform. FIFA Live Events: The FIFA Live Events are back with a slew of new features: • New Live Stadiums: UEFA Champions League Stadiums in Amsterdam and Basel, as well as a brand-new venue: The International Stadium of Yokohama, • New Live Game Day Scenarios: The 2017 UEFA Super Cup in Monaco, EURO 2016 Opening Match in France and Euro 2020 Qualifiers including Group Stage games in Gibraltar and Belarus. • New Live Game Day Moments: Euro 2016 Final, UEFA Super Cup 2017, 2018 UEFA Champions League Final and the 2019 UEFA Super Cup in Istanbul. • New Popular Atmospheres and Prompts: UEFA Champions League 2017 Final (Manchester United v Real Madrid), the FIFA World Cup Opening Game 2018, and the EURO 2017 Opening & Final matches. Focus Features: During a game, players in the default set-up can call in a Focus Feature to explain an impact or a series of decisions that will affect gameplay, or the result of the match. For example, a misplaced pass might lead to an open goal, or the loss of an important ball or a goal because the defensive line was positioned incorrectly. These are isolated to the default game set-up, and are not compatible with player-controlled features, custom kits or shareable Player Stories. Cross Play: In FIFA, you can play with people of any nationality. EA SPORTS has delivered the ultimate cross-cultural playground with cross-play multiplayer functionality. With FIFA 22, you can play with people around the world through PlayStation 4, Xbox One, Nintendo Switch, and Windows PC. In addition, in FIFA Ultimate Team, FIFA Mobile
