#! /bin/sh # # Checks for a bug reported by Jacek Artymiak : # # # # The file "pkg/rpm/identity.spec" is present only for the target arch, # but not for the architecture used for checking. # set -x exit 1 Q: Mysql isn't showing my foreign key I have a user table with a foreign key role_id. I'm using the following query to retrieve all the users information and the role they belong to: SELECT u.user_id, u.username, u.password, u.email, u.role_id, r.role_name FROM users AS u INNER JOIN roles AS r ON u.role_id = r.role_id But it doesn't work, it just returns everything and the user_id is null. My table structure: users(user_id, username, password, email) roles(role_id, role_name) and the foreign key: users -role_id users -role_id roles -role_id A: You need to select the respective columns from both tables to get the foreign key value into your result set. You are assigning user_id to role_id. So, there is no user_id column in your result set. SELECT u.user_id, u.username, u.password, u.email, r.role_name FROM users AS u INNER JOIN roles AS r ON u.role_id = r.role_id. Read more in the MySQL documentation on How to Write a SQL SELECT statement. Q: Dividing two numbers and storing in an integer. Is it possible? I have a C assignment where we are to use a pointer and a function to divide two integers and store in a char array. This is my

Q: Can you cast the Status Damage Skin to Defence and put the Reaver charge as Fury? I have 1 charge of the Reaver. If I cast the Status Damage Skin as Reaver can I still put a 10/20% damage bonus but have a 5/10% armor bonus? A: If you cast status damage for reaver, yes, you can both get the armor and damage bonuses. Though you wont be able to use the reaver skill like that, and the skin will be in your inventory. U.S. Defense Secretary Jim Mattis was set to arrive in Rome on Sunday for talks aimed at reassuring European allies that the United States will continue to abide by a 1987 nuclear deal with Iran, in the latest twist in a standoff between Washington and Tehran. President Donald Trump, who pulled the United States out of the agreement last year, has ordered U.S. forces back into the accord or risk facing severe economic sanctions. Mattis's trip to Rome coincided with a trip to Madrid by Secretary of State Mike Pompeo. The U.S. officials' message to the Europeans will be that Iran must be held to account for violations of the deal that would otherwise allow it to resume higher-level uranium enrichment that can be used to make fuel for a civilian nuclear program. The U.N. nuclear watchdog says Iran is abiding by the pact as required under it. Pompeo's recent visits with foreign ministers from the six world powers that signed the accord have been aimed at shoring up their commitment to the accord, which they reached with Iran in 2015. His secretary of state has also spoken with German Foreign Minister Heiko Maas in an attempt to get the European Union to agree to tougher U.S. sanctions against Iran, according to a statement released by the State Department. The move to re-impose sanctions is part of Trump's "maximum pressure" campaign designed to force Tehran into negotiations for a broader deal to roll back its ballistic missile program, end its nuclear activities and halt its support for proxies in wars across the region. Read more: "Since 2015 the International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA) has verified Iran's compliance with the JCPOA. The record speaks for itself," IAEA spokeswoman Gill Tudor told The Associated Press on Sunday. "The IAEA has said repeatedly that all outstanding issues have been resolved. The agency cannot say more without breaching the confidentiality
