Shangri-La has been lying dormant for over 40 years, and finally blossomed into a green oasis located on the west coast of the USA, amidst the Mojave desert. Here, innovators and investors are attracted, one of them being Mark Wagner, an industry veteran. It is a symbol of the success story of the real estate development in the American desert. Born in 1939, Mark Wagner created and developed the world-class golf course at the historic Landmark Resort & Casino in Las Vegas, Nevada. He also served as the executive vice president and chief operating officer for Station Casinos, a Las Vegas-based diversified casino company with 19 casino properties in Nevada, California, and New Mexico. To understand the success of Shangri-La, understand the story of Wagner. He believes that the idea of luxury and being the embodiment of the true Vegas lifestyle. By 1990, he found out that he could develop a resort and golf course beside the Red Rock Canyon, 50 miles northwest of Las Vegas. In 1995, Shangri-La opened its doors. It was the first major project in the desert, and the first resort in Nevada. Despite the lack of resort or casino properties in the area, Shangri-La recorded solid success in the first year. The resort had been gaining momentum due to Wagner's reputation for creating extraordinary experiences for his guests. ? As much as I am a Dana girl. I have found if there was a bunch of money I would go for anything but the German guns. As far as this gun? It is a good gun, but to me it would be nicer if it had a color taker and short barrel. Would not give it a pass over the super tanks. Overall I think this tank would give the toy the better looking tank. What do you think? Again, great list, and I agree with Steve - I mean Supertank59? What is the story? I would not have a weapon system with the name Supertank 59, lol! Bad sign if you get all worked up with a stupid name. I would make that change and in doing so you would prefer a tank with the superior name and look. I can tell from your post you use the real names for things to avoid confusion. They have separated the name from the identity and you should? The design being a separate entity you could start looking at its identity. Not that they have given a meaning to this tank but I am certain they have some meaning and at this point they are cover products not toys. Do you think they will put an IR Laser on it someday? Or a Laser gun that fires some type of (hint hint) thermal queaser? I know its a little off subject, but there has been a lot of weird stuff being post here lately. lol! I am pretty sure that one of the reason they are called Super Tank 59 is that they tried to make a tank that would be rather unique as far as its appearance. Previously, the MP10s had grey coloration; the MP12s had grey coloration, and the MP08 has had blue coloration. The Super Tank 59 is made in the blue coloration pattern the MP08 has had. However, there is an easy and, for me, very plausible reason as to why the Super Tank 59 has not been colored in the pattern the MP10s and MP12s have had: Those three other tanks were also accurate replicas of real tanks that served in WWII, and some of them were made quite a few years before the Super Tank 59 was created. One would think they would have wanted to imitate these real tanks in paint. However, there is an easy and, for me, very plausible reason as to why the Super Tank 59 has not been colored in the pattern the MP10s and MP
