Home » Latest News JOHANNESBURG, Aug. 29 (Xinhua) -- The South African rand dropped to its lowest in weeks after the resignation of former president Jacob Zuma in a financial scandal that could end his tenure. The South African currency, which had been slightly higher in recent days, opened down at 8.07 a dollar on Aug. 29 on the interbank market, losing 0.39 U.S. cents to 8.20, after a 10 percent stake in mining firm Gauteng North and senior officials in the ruling African National Congress party announced Zuma's resignation last night. The rand is trading near a five-month low, with international investors jittery about the South African economy, the subject of more than 20 corruption scandals and Zuma's fate. A Rand Daily News poll released on Tuesday showed that more than half of the more than 4,000 voters surveyed said Zuma's exit would have no impact on the economy. "I am confident that President Zuma will be able to deal with the "resignation" of the ANC and his departure as the President of the Republic," declared Motlafela Mathebula, an ANC member and resident of KwaZulu-Natal province, according to the poll. Mathebula said she was not concerned about Zuma's leadership. "The ANC faces no challenge of a leadership and the ANC is still intact. President Zuma must resign for others to take over his administration." Zuma, who has been accused of raping an aide and harassing several others, left the post of president at 12:01 a.m. (0801 GMT) on Tuesday. His resignation was followed by ANC secretary general Gwede Mantashe. The party appointed Cyril Ramaphosa, the one-time chief-of-staff of Zuma, to succeed the former president. The ANC is now in the last year of an interim leadership transition. The rand closed at 8.20 a dollar on Wednesday, down 0.40 U.S. cent, or 4.2 percent. The local currency closed 0.74 percent lower to 13.094/14.072/2 against the U.S. dollar/euro/pound. The South African financial market is closed for a public holiday this week for the Aug. 11 commemoration of the end of apartheid. Joseph C. Wein
