The kids have to remain on task during the story time, and they couldn't keep track of their score for each story, since we have to record it while listening to the audio (similar to listening while a movie playing). Here are the results. "The Princess and the Pea" vs. "Tickle Me" King Scrooge of Varadair, of Australia's Scrooge Country, and his most trusted companion were out on a fishing trip. Scrooge was very excited when they came across a sunken pot of gold. He quickly dipped his net into the water and hauled it up, but all he caught were part of a beautiful princess! "The Princess and the Pea" won. King Scrooge threw away the princess and his companion took his fishing net to the shore. He waded in the water and picked up the rest of the treasure. The King Scrooge was a very happy man. His empress also grew giddy with joy. Friday, March 10, 2010 It's important to discuss measures that can be taken in order to have a safe place to put stuff. Here's a definition we used. We've all had this problem at one time or another: keep the kindergarten class from eating all of our new art supplies. Safety Box vs. Childproof Closet: We put measures into place in order to avoid the problem. We have a Safety Box in our kindergarten classroom, and keep our art supplies locked up in there when the classroom is not in use. We also keep the classroom in areas that are staffed, so no one could walk in with the class and break the things. We've been using this for a few weeks now, and we've found

A: In order to pair your modem to your device, it's required that the ISP (i.e. your modem's carrier) setup the device as a computer. You can find more information in the "Setup and Configuration" section of the user's guide. One way to approach this is to use a modem emulator such as ModemManager. Q: what is the purpose of type() and __repr__ function I am trying to understand the purpose of the type(instance_type) in python 2.7 and 3.4 for both instance and class(instance of a class and instance of a class). Also the __repr__ function. I know that type is used to find the type of the object. For example, I have class A which has an object obj. So, type(obj) returns Class. If I want to know the type of obj, I can use obj.__class__.__name__. But the question is, when type(instance_type) is called, is obj instance of class A also called and thus the type of obj is Class? A: The type() function returns the type of the instance (type(obj)) not the type of the class (type(Class)). The __repr__ function returns a string representation of the instance which may be used when debugging. Q: How to use UNION in mysql? I have two tables: I have a table named: useraccount which has a field named:accountId. and I have a table named: issue which has a field named: issuedId. I would like to issue a query, so that I can take the users name from the useraccount table, and from this users accountId, I want to take the users issue from the table named issue. What query should I use? I tried the following SELECT * FROM useraccount UNION SELECT * FROM issue WHERE useraccount.accountId == issue.userId But it still isn't working UPDATE: I tried the following SELECT * FROM useraccount WHERE accountId = '13' UNION
