vBulletin Message 7. Hello world! I am glad to see you here. vBulletin is a free, advanced open-source forum software available under the GNU General Public License. This application relates to methods for the preparation of fluorinated organic compounds, such as perfluoroalkyl iodide, perfluoroalkyl iodides and perfluoroalkyl thiols, useful in the preparation of photoresists, etc. Perfluoroalkyl iodides and perfluoroalkyl iodides are useful in the preparation of photoresists and other fluoropolymers and polymers. In particular, the perfluoroalkyl iodides are useful in the production of fluoro polymers and polymers containing groups that can be converted to fluoro groups. The synthesis of perfluoroalkyl iodides is reviewed in B. F. Kelly and L. R. Lundberg, Kirk-Othmer Encyclopedia of Chemical Technology, Fourth Edition, Vol. 12, pp. 304-310 (1996). A conventional method for the preparation of perfluoroalkyl iodides and perfluoroalkyl iodides involves a halogen exchange reaction between a perfluoroalkyl halide, R_f-I , and elemental iodine, I_2 . The halogen exchange reaction is typically conducted in a solvent such as dichloromethane at a temperature of about $-20^\circ C$. to $-30^\circ C$. The reaction, however, is not generally useful for making perfluoroalkyl iodides with longer perfluoroalkyl groups, such as perfluoro-tert-butyl iodide, perfluoro-octyl iodide, perfluoro-nonyl iodide or perfluoro-decyl iodide, because the reaction is very slow. In addition, this reaction is not useful for the preparation of perfluoroalkyl iodides containing groups that are more sterically hindered. For example, it is not useful for the preparation of perfluoroalkyl iodides containing groups that are aryl-substituted groups, such as perfluoro-3-aryliodide. Another conventional method for the preparation of perfluoroalkyl iodides and perfluoroalkyl iodides involves a halogen exchange reaction between a perfluoroalkyl bromide, R_f-Br , and elemental iodine. This reaction, however, is not useful for making
