I recently bought an Asus 9 inch netbook: Asus EEE PC 1000-HD and never had any problems with drivers before. With it, I installed Windows Vista Home Premium and everything worked perfectly. . Then I installed Windows 7 Home Premium, and used the same wireless mouse and keyboard that I used in Vista. But now when I use the mouse or keyboard the screen just turns off until I press the power button of the netbook. I have installed all of the drivers that were . mentioned in the Microsoft Site and the Asus Site, but it has not worked. I have figured out that the EOS thingy that is on the top left of the screen just randomly turns off from time to time. But when I see that, I can not get the screen back. I am not sure if the problem is with the mouse or the keyboard. Thanks. A: Thanks for re-posting and for clarifying some other details in your question. We need to do some tests and try to reproduce your issue to help you. Hopefully, you will be able to enable us and we will get to it as soon as we can. The connection to the laptop and the mouse and keyboard are OK - they work fine while the issue occurs. The issue appears to be limited to the screen only. The issue occurs on Windows 7, Windows XP, and Windows Vista. The issue occurs even when you install the OS from a USB stick. Based on this information, it looks like an issue with the graphics driver, but it could be a problem in a particular application (a different program) that is using the graphics driver (which is the operating system's 'native' driver), and causing the rest of the system to stop working. It could be a problem with the GPU in this Asus EEE PC 1000HD netbook. You can solve some of these issues by disabling certain services/programs (via the services control panel) - but we need to check which program is causing the issues for you to be able to disable it.
