SINGAPORE - The first president of the United States of America to visit Singapore could be Donald Trump, Prime Minister Lee Hsien Loong said on Tuesday (Aug 2) - leaving Singaporeans on tenterhooks. The US President is due to arrive in the Republic on Aug 13 for a brief four-day visit - which is likely to include the historic handover of the White House to Mr Trump's successor, a ceremony Mr Lee will attend. Speaking at a public dialogue session at the National Library on Tuesday, Mr Lee said he hoped "this visit will be a successful one", and that "much has changed". He added: "When I first went to Washington, you had to make an appointment and request to see him. Now, there is a queue you join, and you wait your turn. You go up the stairs, and you get a welcoming committee that reminds you of a welcoming committee in a part of the world that is very similar to Singapore, just with a lot of bodyguards." Prime Minister Lee Hsien Loong speaking at a public dialogue session at the National Library. ST PHOTO: SAM YEH But there is no queue for Mr Trump - he does not have to go through red-carpet treatment or endure a long security check. Mr Lee said: "No, he just goes and sits in the Oval Office."

MSRP: $49.99 ]]> Mon, 10 Feb 2017 16:46:31 -0500DLC Bundle THE FLATS (Key of Strife) 25 May 2015 12:52:16 -0500Vathir76Vathir76News Paralympian lost her legs in Germany accident on World Cup racecourse 8 August 2018 Connie Lawn lost both of her legs when her quadriplegic wheelchair collided with a D-Team rider's high-wheeler in the closing stages of the UCI Paracycling Cross-Country Runde in Germany, on 20 June 2018. Connie was racing in the women's elite race, an invitational event with elite and amateur riders participating on the same UCI roads. At the end of race event, two wheelchairs had to cross the finish line simultaneously before a marked line. Unfortunately, they collided head on, slamming together. In the resulting accident, Connie's wheelchair broke. With barely enough time to react, Connie's high-wheeler struck her and sent her spinning forward. The impact she received against the sharp edge of the pavement caused a fatal fracture to her femur, rendering her both missing her right leg and partially removed from her left one. She was airlifted to Johannes Gutenberg University Hospital in Mainz, Germany, where she was stabilised for two weeks before moving to Manchester, where she is being cared for in an induced coma while preparing for a surgery to fuse her leg. Her progress will be closely monitored and she will be in hospital for several weeks after the operation. Commenting about the accident that almost resulted in the end of her career, she said: "I've always preferred a sprint finish and this was the only opportunity I had, despite what the commentators said, because I'd never competed before. "I held on to my last bit of strength and suddenly I found myself in front of my high-wheeler, inches away from the finishing line and I never have a chance to react. "The first thing I think about is the fact that I

In recent years, thermoplastic resins have been widely used in various fields for the purpose of manufacturing simplified plastic products and recycling of discarded products. As the thermoplastic resin which can be used for the purpose of recycling, there are proposed thermoplastic resin compositions having excellent properties such as excellent heat resistance, mechanical properties, processability and the like, and many patent applications have been filed in the United States, European countries and Japan. However, the recycling of thermoplastic resin products requires the separation of the resin from waste products, and a certain level of level of strength is required for the separated resin. Particularly, if high strength is required in a high temperature environment, the binder resin contained in the thermoplastic resin is decomposed or broken, and this may cause the crack of the molded product. In order to prevent the crack of the molded product, the strength of the binder resin is preferably reduced as much as possible in the recycling process. In this regard, for example, Patent Document 1 discloses a method of using a thermoplastic resin obtained by polymerizing and crosslinking a composition comprising: (A) a mixture of an  $\alpha$ -olefin polymer and a polyester or polyether resin, (B) a tri-functional polyisocyanate, (C) an organic or inorganic peroxydisulfate and (D) an organic or inorganic melamine cyanurate. However, in the above resin composition described in Patent Document 1, while an effect of preventing the crack during the recycling process of thermoplastic resin is shown, an effect of reducing the deterioration of the molded product during the recycling process is not shown. Under such circumstances, it is desired to develop a resin composition which is less soluble in organic solvent and can prevent the crack of the molded product during the recycling process. Two weeks before our immediate anniversary I asked him if he could convince my wife to be with him. To my surprise he said he did not know if she would accept the proposal. I think this is a good opportunity to tell a bit more about this guy and what she is looking for from her
